

Life In Jeopardy (A Fire Safety Game)

“Life in Jeopardy” is a safety game played with children, (kindergarten through fifth grade). It’s like a real live game of Jeopardy where the children become contestants.

They make their category selection from a BIG jeopardy board where a question will appear. They are then expected to respond with the correct answer. Prizes are awarded as an extra incentive.

The game was created to help children learn about fire safety and is intended to boost their understanding of safety issues and confidence, so they respond effectively during emergencies.

This event is generally hosted by the Bentonville Public Library and is a fun way for even parents to interact and enjoy an educational experience with their children.

Be sure to watch for dates and times of this event (Fire Safety Game) in the “City Events” section, on the “Home” page of our City Web Site, www.bentonvillear.com, and come prepared to learn and have “FUN”.

The success and continuance of all programs of this nature is solely based on attendance and/or participation, so share this educational event with your family, friends, and neighbors. Come as a group, a family, or individually.

For any questions regarding these events or to schedule an event of this nature, you can contact James Birchfield at the Bentonville Fire Department at 271-3108, or via email at jbirchfield@bentonvillear.com